

Key Campaigns for System Change

“Activism is my rent for living on the planet” Alice Walker

We urgently need to campaign for decisive outcomes at UN Summits. The talks in Bonn in April 2010, intended to firm up actions to implement the Copenhagen Accord, which many smaller and poorer nations refused to sign, completely failed. Little was achieved at the UN Summit, COP16, at Cancun in 2010. The debt crisis now overshadows everything else. We must put even more pressure on governments and demand processes that properly include the poorer nations and outcomes that reflect their interests. Otherwise all of us will lose.

Equally, we need to campaign for a great transition to a sustainable, just and non-violent economic system and against repressive measures being taken by governments.

7bn people have the power to bring about radical change.

Here is a longer list of campaigns. Prioritise where to put your energy and money. Focus on the issues you are most passionate about and believe will make the greatest difference. Use your browser. My top priorities are CND, Compass, Garden Organic, GM Freeze, Greenpeace, New Economics Foundation, Peace Direct, Soil Association, Unlock Democracy, World Development Movement.
